

Flying Squirrel Ranch & Farm is located in the Potomac Highlands of Appalachia. We're about equal distance from Washington DC, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh.

We employ a full green-cycle farm-to-table and grain-to-glass operation. We grow and harvest corn, grapes, nut, and fruit trees for eating and craft distillery operations. A small garden and fish pond provides food and sustenance for us human residents while marauding wildlife eat what we can't harvest quick enough. Distillery by-products and water recovery is used for feed, fertilizer, and irrigation.

Most of the 30 acres is left wild for the native flora and fauna. The 5 acres of pasture land carries a small creek and fishing pond. The meadow has many medicinal herbs and wildflowers.

A frighteningly fast 500' zip line runs from the barn facility at the top of the hill to the meadow below. Aside from overnight camping, fishing, and hiking, our mini craft distillery offers free tasting of a variety of artisan-made spirits such as whiskies, gin, rum, liquors and of course, "moonshine". When not in production cycle, the large 3200 square foot barn with lofts serves as an events and gathering facility.

Nearby Rada is the Potomac Eagle Scenic Railroad offering a train tour along the Southern Branch of the Potomac River running from Romney to Petersburg where travelers often catch glimpses of Bald Eagles or bears. Other nearby attractions are Civil War battlefields and historic towns of Moorefield, Romney, and Keyser.
